In some parts of Ukraine, less than 50% of medical infrastructure is still operational. And many hospitals are close to breaking point as they tend to be traumatised and injured soldiers, veterans and internally displaced persons (IDPs) alongside regular patients. There is also an acute need for mental health and psychosocial support to help the armed forces and civilian population process the daily trauma of war. The German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) is helping Ukraine safeguard the provision of medical care to the general public by strengthening the country's health and social infrastructure.
